Triton krewe disbands, no US-90 parade on Mardi Gras Day

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Mardi Gras Day in Hancock County for many years has meant lawn chairs, picnics and visiting with friends and relatives along US-90 in Bay St. Louis and Waveland while waiting for the Krewe of Triton parade.

But this year there will not be a highway parade staged by the Triton members as its board of directors recently voted to disband.

"This was a very hard decision, one that each of the board members agonized over for a long time," according to Ross Burke, treasurer.

"We did everything in our power to stave off this action but in reality we did not have any choice," he added.

"The Krewe of Triton has enjoyed a long and happy time in Hancock County and people I have talked with feel it will be a dull Mardi Gras Day without our parade," Burke said.

He said the krewe had been facing the possibility of having to disband for several years and but a lack of support in many areas had made this action unavoidable.

"It was a product of the times, the economic structure in Hancock County and lack of interest and support by members," he said.

Attesting to the lack of interest in the krewe was the poor attendance by members at a general membership meeting to determine the fate of the organization.

According to the minutes of this meeting, only 20 members of the 73 total attended the meeting.

Krewe President Noel Phillips outlined justifications for disbandment of the krewe as "lack of support on the part of the membership for fundraisers and getting new members and lack of dollars to cover the cost of current debts as well as to incur new contracts."

During discussion members talked of the "need to do something... anything so that Triton does not fold," according to the minutes.

The final outcome of the meeting was a motion for the board of directors to find a definitive formula for liquidation of the debts of the Krewe of Triton and report back to the general membership within two weeks.

"Nobody wanted the krewe to disband and many people just did not want to face the reality of what we had to do," Burke added.

The board's plan for liquidation of debts includes selling the Coleman Avenue den and seeking purchasers for the krewe's floats.

Disbursement of funds will begin with payment of all krewe debts.

New members who have not had the opportunity to participate in a ball, supper dance and parade will receive a refund of all monies paid.

Other members in good standing will receive refunds for supper dance tickets, favors, doubloons and dues.

All other money will be divided amount the members in good standing.

In the notice of disbandment to krewe members, members of the board of directors stated there is "no plan to reorganize the Krewe of Triton by the current board."

Burke said it is not likely that under the present board and corporate structure the krewe could be reorganized.

Although the Krewe of Triton will no longer be parading on Mardi Gras Day, the Krewe of Real People will be parading in the City of Bay St. Louis and the Krewe of Nereids annual parade on US-90 in Waveland will be February 7.

DRAINAGE BASINS—Bay St. Louis City employees, from left, Darrel Hardie, Shawn Henderson and Field Superintendent Buddy Zimmerman at work on repairs to deteriorated drainage catch basins on Main Street. Part of a water line and sidewalk replacement project, this work is being completed by city crews to save money on the project. Zimmerman said as the existing brick basins are being replaced with concrete, the work is going slowly but should be finished by early next week.

Toxic reactions in pets reported

Humane Society asks merchants to stop selling Blockade spray

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Humane Society is asking local stores to stop selling a flea and tick spray that is allegedly harmful to pets.

According to Humane Society Vice-President Thyla P. Rogers, the product is an aerosol spray called Blockade and is marketed by Hartz Mountain Corporation.

Its active ingredients are an insecticide known as DEET and a synthetic pyrethrin already approved as a pesticide.

She said the Hancock and Harrison County chapters began asking that the product not be used after a report on the television program "20-20" concerning illness and death in pets sprayed with Blockade.

She said some stores Humane Society members contacted were parts of chains and must obtain permission from their home offices before removing a product in response to a local request.

One store agreed to stop selling Blockade, she added. Rogers said the society contacted three veterinarians practicing in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, obtaining written statements from each regarding possible dangers associated with the product.

Dr. Connie Clemons Chevis of Bay St. Louis provided a copy of a report from a professional publication, "DVM Magazine," stating that symptoms of toxicity reported after Blockade use included "tremors, salivation, vomiting, lack of coordination and extreme hyperactivity."

Other symptoms listed by DVM Magazine include seizures; abnormally low body temperatures, particularly in young kittens; rear-end paralysis, which appears mostly in dogs about a week to 10 days after the animal has been sprayed; and death, with female kittens, cats under 20 weeks old, dogs less than three months old and ill or elderly pets being the most susceptible.

Clemons stated that she had not personally treated any animals with Blockade-associated toxicities at the time she wrote her Dec. 1 statement for the Humane Society, but she had heard of two cases in the Hancock County area.

"The first case was a cat who went into seizures and is now deaf," her letter states.

"The second case involved a young dog who was acting fine before being sprayed. The owners sprayed the pet, and left it playing in the yard. Within 30 minutes, the owner heard a sharp yelp so went outside to check the dog. They found the pet dead."

"At this time, I am convinced that the product Blockade has not been sufficiently proven to be safe for use on pets. I do not recommend its use." Furthermore, until conclusive scientific data has been presented justifying its safety as an insecticide for use on pets, I recommend that its display and sale to the public be stopped.

"There are too many other scientifically proven products which are safe for use on pets to take a chance on one which is suspect," the veterinarian added.

A second Bay St. Louis veterinarian, Dr. James Mahler, stated, "I have seen two severe adverse reactions including seizures and incoordination of about two days' duration following the removal of the Blockade."

"These two cats would have probably died without treatment, which includes bathing to remove the product."

He added that several types of minor reactions such as vomiting and incoordination had been noted following use of the product.

"The medical evidence indicates that at this time the risks outweigh the benefits," Mahler added.

Dr. H.W. LeBourgeois of Waveland stated that by early December, when the product had already been available since early 1987, he had treated three cats for toxicity symptoms after they had been sprayed with the product.

"I have had three cats less than one year of age become very ill, needing intensive care and hospitalization for two to four days," he stated.

"Based on these cases, recent professional articles with regard to Blockade and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency insistence for further testing and labeling, I recommend that pet owners should avoid the product at least temporarily."

The EPA request had led to an agreement from Hartz that the product would be relabeled with cautions against use on cats less than a year old, dogs less than three months old and ill or elderly pets.

The new labels also have more complete instructions for use with a caution that the product should not be used more often than every seven days and a list of common signs of toxicity.

Rogers said the Humane Society was also planning to distribute printed information about Blockade, but has delayed doing so until Spring because that is usually the time of year the most pet adoptions occur at the Hancock County Animal Shelter.

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club to compete in challenge regatta

The Bay-Waveland Yacht Club is one of twelve leading yacht clubs selected to compete in the 1988 U.S. Yacht Club Challenge to determine the best yacht club in the nation.

The event, organized and hosted by the Newport Harbor Yacht Club and sponsored by Rolex Watch U.S.A., which has been presenting sponsor of the biennial regatta since its inception in 1984, will be sailed in the waters off Newport Beach, Calif. April 6-10.

At a Newport Harbor Yacht Club press conference, Staff Commodore

William Flicker, selection committee chairman, announced the complete roster of clubs that have been chosen to participate:

- Balboa Yacht Club, Balboa, Calif.
 - Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, Bay St. Louis, Miss.
 - Bayview Yacht Club, Detroit, Mich.
 - California Yacht Club, Marina del Rey, Calif.
 - Chicago Yacht Club, Chicago, Ill. (Competitor, 1984, 1986)

All I needed to know— I learned in kindergarten

By Robert Fulgham
Reprinted from Michigan Municipal Review

Most of what I really need to know about how to live and what to do and how to be, I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate school mountain, but there is the sandbox at nursery school.

These are the things I learned. Share everything. Play fair. Don't hit people. Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you're sorry when you hurt someone. Wash your hands before you eat. Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you. Live a balanced life. Learn some and think some and draw and paint and sing and dance and play and work every day some.

Take a nap in the afternoon. When you go out into the world, watch for traffic, hold hands and stick together. Be aware of wonder. Remember the little seed in the plastic cup. The roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows how or why, but we are all like that.

Goldfish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the plastic cup—they all die. So do we.

And then remember the book about Dick and Jane and the first word you learned, the biggest word of all: LOOK.

Everything you need to know is in there somewhere. The Golden rule and love and basic sanitation, ecology and politics and sane living.

Think of what a better world it would be if we all—the whole world—had cookies and milk about 3 o'clock every afternoon and then laid down with our blankets for a nap.

Or if we had a basic policy in our nation and other nations to always put things back where we found them and clean up our own messes.

And it is still true, no matter how old you are, when you go out into the world, it is best to hold hands and stick together.

In addition to appointments normally made at the beginning of a new administration or a calendar year, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors will select an interim supervisor for District Four at its first 1988 meeting.

While he declined comment on who would be appointed, Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas said the board had considered several possibilities and will name the interim supervisor Monday in the wake of the resignation of Sam Perniciaro Sr.

Perniciaro's resignation was accepted with regret at the Dec. 29 meeting, the last one for two outgoing board members, James Travira of Beat Five and Bert Courge of Beat One.

Perniciaro was scheduled to serve a fourth term, but resigned as part of a plea-bargain agreement after his November conviction in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's "Operation Pretense," which is looking into county purchasing practices and has resulted in about 50 indictments of supervisors and equipment suppliers statewide.

Cuevas, who has been serving A.A. Kellar's unexpired term since August, said he and the remaining board members, who also include returning Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner, will continue past policy in naming the interim supervisor.

The board has in the past selected for interim appointments people who did not plan to run for the office later, except in cases where the vacant position involved occurred through death.

Cuevas, although appointed to fill a position vacated through resignation, was an exception because he had already been elected through a Democratic primary victory.

The board also has its routine appointments to make Monday, some of which must be made annually while others are made every four years after a new board takes office.

These include appointment of the board attorney, purchase clerk and comptroller, Justice Court clerk and deputy clerks, veterans service officer, special prosecuting attorney, Youth Court prosecutor, public defender, county engineer and deputy Circuit Court clerks.

Also included are bookkeeping department staff and board secretaries, civil defense director and secretary, road maintenance superintendent, redemption clerk for chancery clerk's office, county building official, and all county employees.

In addition, the chancery clerk in Hancock County also serves in several appointed capacities, including county clerk, treasurer, auditor, Youth Court clerk and clerk of Chancery Court.

The board also appoints members of several commissions, including the Port and Harbor Commission, which serves as an administrative body for managements of Port Belville Industrial Park and Stennis Industrial Airpark; County Park Commission, which helps operate McLeod Water Park in Kiln; and County Planning Commission, which regulates construction in the county with regard to subdivision and floodplain regulations.

The board is also scheduled to appoint one board member as a county representative on the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management Board, which also includes the mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and is currently working on a project designed to provide the first publicly owned sewerage systems in the unincorporated parts of Hancock County.

A board member must also be appointed to serve as a county representative for Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District. Also, the supervisors must recommend a local minority

State Board of Education reports actions

The State Board of Education took several actions during its last two meetings which will have an effect on most local school districts:

(1) At its November meeting, the Board adopted an emergency plan for the certification of special education teachers. This came as the result of the severe shortage of teachers which currently exists in the special education field.

Over the past three years, the number of emergency certificates granted by the Board for special education has been about equal to the number of such certificates granted for all other teaching fields combined. So far in 1987-88, the rate has climbed even further. To alleviate the problem, the Board adopted this plan:

Short-range

Teachers who do not meet the basic requirements currently being applied by the Exceptions Committee may be granted an emergency certificate in special education by doing the following:

(a) Effective Jan. 1, 1988, take a one-week "crash" course especially designed for this purpose. The costs of taking this course would be paid by the school district. (b) Work under the direction of an experienced, fully certified teacher. (c) Enroll immediately (in the next ensuing semester) in a university course, and obtain six semester hours within one calendar year toward certification in order to be eligible for a second emergency certificate. (d) Take additional course work (at least six hours each subsequent year) so as to qualify for full certification within three years.

Long-range

(a) Work with university personnel toward an effort to integrate special education teaching skills into regular elementary teacher education courses. The goal would be to have all regular education teacher graduates certified in Educationally Handicapped. (b) Use the IHL scholarship monies or local monies to fund courses in special education at numerous sites around the state.

The plan is already being implemented, and we are working with several districts where emergencies exist. We will monitor closely the effect that this plan has on the supply of special education teachers.

Also at its November meeting, the Board took two actions regarding school transportation: (1) Effective immediately all school buses in the State of Mississippi will be required to be inspected a minimum of four times each year. (2) The State of Mississippi will not use 17-year-olds as school bus drivers after the end of the 1987-88 school year.

These two actions were taken partly as the result of increasing pressure from the U.S. Department of Labor regarding 17-year-old drivers, and partly for the concern over the likely impending loss of sovereign immunity for governmental bodies in Mississippi.

Since local districts in this state are currently employing only eighteen 17-year-olds as regular drivers, the action to eliminate their future use should not cause a great hardship.

Johnny Franklin, former principal of Warren Central High School and currently assistant superintendent for special services in the Vicksburg Warren School District, has been employed by the State Board of Education to serve as director of the new Mississippi School for Math and Science. The school will open in September on the campus of the Mississippi University for Women. He begins in his new position on Jan. 4.

FIVE YEAR PLANS

At its December meeting, the State Board extended the deadline date for local school districts to complete their initial five-year plan. The new date is Dec. 31, 1988. This action was taken because of the large number of new superintendents who are taking office in mid-year, and because of other concerns which have been expressed by local officials.

AIDS

At both its November and December meetings, the State Board discussed the problem of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. The Board is looking at two aspects of this problem: (a) AIDS education and (b) guidelines for local school officials for use in handling cases of students or staff members with AIDS.

The SDE is working closely with the State Department of Health on these issues, and at its January meeting the Board expects to examine guidelines which would be sent to local school districts under the joint auspices of the State Board of Education and the State Department of Health.

FEDERAL BUDGET

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings federal deficit reduction went into effect November 20th and will result in across-the-board spending cuts of $23 billion. However, in light of the recent FY 1988 Budget Agreement reached by President Reagan and congressional leaders, those Gramm-Rudman cuts are a formality that should soon be replaced. Since most Education funds are not spent before July 1st, the temporary sequestration should have little impact on Education funding. The Budget Amendment, if passed by Congress, would replace cuts by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law and could allow slight increases in most Education programs. This would, however, retreat from the larger increases already approved by separate House and Senate appropriation bills. We will notify you of any effects that ongoing discussions in Washington might have on your federal funds immediately after we receive word.

ASBESTOS

Local school officials should pay close attention to the new rules which have been adopted by the Environmental Protection Agency for the abatement and removal of asbestos. It is our understanding that local school superintendents will be receiving information about the new rules within the next few weeks. In the meantime, I am enclosing (for superintendents only) (a short summary of the regulations which have been written as a result of the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act.

SUPERINTENDENT SEARCH

The Board of Trustees of the Biloxi Public Schools is seeking applicants for the position of superintendent of schools. Persons interested in the job should contact Mrs. Walterine Maddox, Executive Assistant, Biloxi Public Schools, P.O. Box 188, Biloxi, MS 39533, or call (601)-374-1810. Brochures will be available Jan. 8, applications will be available Jan. 12. The deadline for applications is February 15.

PRM presents excerpts from Lake Wobegon Days

Garrison Keillor reads selections from his best-selling book Lake Wobegon Days on PRM on a special "A Prairie Home Companion" Saturday, Jan. 9 at 10 a.m., with a repeat Sunday, January 10, at 2 p.m. Keillor's performance was put together from recordings made in Akron, Philadelphia and Boston in the fall of 1985.

Keillor reads and talks about history of Lake Wobegon and the pattern of life there and how as a child he longed for ceremony and dreamed that his family was secretly Italian. He reads excerpts from "95 Theses 95," the documentary slipped under the door of the Lake Wobegon Herald-Star by a former Wobegonian, and answers questions from the audience. "One More Spring" and other favorite songs and poems are also included in the broadcast.

Pulic Radio in Mississippi, a division of Mississippi ETV, is broadcast statewide and from Biloxi on 90.3 FM.

■ San Diego Yacht Club, San Diego, Calif. (Competitor, 1984, 1986)

■ St. Francis Yacht Club, San Francisco, Calif. (Competitor, 1984)

The 1988 event will mark the U.S. Yacht Club Challenge debut of five clubs: Balboa, Bay-Waveland, Bayview, California and Manhasset Bay.

Four of the clubs selected—Chicago, Eastern, Newport Harbor and San Diego—competed in each of the two previous U.S. Yacht Club Challenge regattas in 1984 and 1986.

The Eastern Yacht Club won in 1984, and Newport Harbor was the 1986 winner. Long Beach and St. Francis sailed in the 1984 race series, and Larchmont was among the 1986 competitors.

In announcing this year's invited participants, Flicker commented, "The selection committee has narrowed the field to the 12 yacht clubs that are the all-around best in the nation in terms of club facilities, past racing achievements, hosting of major regattas and member service in yachting organizations. The regatta next April will be the final test of each club's depth of yachting capability to determine which club is the best of all."

Newport Harbor Yacht Club commodore Andrew Zimbaldi added, "The 1988 regatta will be a truly national event, with participating clubs representing both coasts and America's heartland as well. We're looking forward to the most exciting U.S. Yacht Club Challenge ever."

The 1988 race series will be conducted as a Class IV event and will consist of five fleet races sailed on a boat-for-boat basis in Schock 35s. The boats, supplied by the Newport Harbor Yacht Club, will be equalized as closely as possible.

Crew members must be bona fide members of the yacht club they represent. To maintain the Challenge's stature as a true club event rather than a showcase for "superstar" skippers, individuals who have skipped a winning boat in the America's Cup, Olympics, Congressional Cup or in any other Olympic-class world championship may not steer a yacht. These champions can, however, serve in any other crew capacity.

The winning club will have its name and those of the winning crew engraved on the United States Yacht Club Challenge Cup.

First-, second- and third-place clubs will receive take-home trophies, winning crew members will receive Rolex Oyster Perpetual Submariner timepieces, and participation awards will also be presented.

In addition to Flicker, selection committee members included John Burnham, editor of Sailing World Magazine; Peter Janssen, editor of Motor Boating & Sailing; Edward Muhfeld, past publisher and editor-in-chief of Yachting Magazine; and five veteran yachtsmen: James Michael of San Francisco, William L. Palmer, Jr. of Essex, Conn., William Parks of Glenview, Ill., James (Ding) Schoonmaker of Miami, Fla. and Eustace (Sunny) Vynne of Friday Harbor, Wash.

The chairman of the 1988 U.S. Yacht Club Challenge is Newport Harbor Yacht Club member Donald Russell.

leader as an SMPPD advisor.

Cuevas said many of the appointments are expected to be re-appointments, with the people currently serving to continue in their respective positions, but must be made in accordance with statutes governing the procedures of the board of supervisors.

Monday's meeting will be preceded by a swearing-in ceremony for all elected county officials, which will begin at 9 a.m. in the courtroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Circuit Judge James Thomas is scheduled to administer the oaths of office.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony, which will be immediately followed by the supervisors' meeting.

'87 experimental success leads to new studies

By Troy Kight
Agricultural and Forestry
Experiment Station

Buoyed by encouraging harvests from experimental ponds in both 1986 and 1987, a Mississippi fisheries researcher is beginning to eye other promising research areas for freshwater shrimp aquaculture. "Repeating the successful results of the 1986 season was important, and we essentially accomplished that goal this year," said Dr. Lou D'Abramo, a researcher with the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries at Mississippi State University.

D'Abramo has been trying over the past several years to find ways aquaculturists can produce and sell freshwater shrimp on a commercial basis in Mississippi.

His successful shrimp harvests in experimental ponds can now allow D'Abramo to concentrate studies next year on hatchery operations.

The researcher said that one key to success will be the ability to reliably produce young prawns for stocking in commercial ponds.

"We don't expect 100 percent survival of shrimp larvae, but we need to achieve acceptable survival in probably eight out of 10 batches," he said. "Since a hatchery operator would have a number of hatches of shrimp occurring at the same time, this level of success in the hatchery would provide a sound basis for a successful industry to develop."

Another area D'Abramo may explore next year is to evaluate procedures that can increase the weight of shrimp harvested per pound.

"We're investigating methods of size grading young shrimp so we can stock only the larger ones," D'Abramo said. Harvest revenue would then be expected to rise.

Restaurant trials, conducted in 1984 and 1985, indicated that consumers like freshwater shrimp.

Watkins promoted at Coast Electric

Ms. Carol Watkins, a veteran employee with Coast Electric Power Association, in Bay St. Louis, has been promoted to secretary to the general manager of the member-owned utility.

This position formerly was held by Mrs. Edris Stechmann, recently deceased.

Ms. Watkins, who holds an associate of arts degree in secretarial science from Pasadena City College, Pasadena, Calif., began working for Coast Electric in 1966.

Prior to her employment with Coast Electric, she was District Secretary in the West Bank Division of Louisiana Power & Light Company.

Her employment began with Coast Electric as payment posting clerk, and later as consumer accounts representative.

She was then promoted to staff secretary to the manager of administrative services, a position she held until her recent promotion.

Robert Occhi, Coast Electric's general manager, states that "Carol's experience, cooperative spirit, and technical skills have equipped her for this position. We are fortunate to have someone with Carol's knowledge and abilities employed at Coast Electric, and we know she will do an excellent job as executive secretary."

Ms. Watkins stated, "I'm honored to have the opportunity of working more closely with Mr. Occhi and our board of directors, for whom I have the highest regard. I appreciate the wonderful support expressed by my fellow employees, and look forward to working with them in my new position."

Ms. Watkins presently resides in Bay St. Louis. She has one son, Randy, who is a student at Mississippi State University.

Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo set for New Orleans March 3-5

New Orleans—When the first annual Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo gets underway in New Orleans, La., on March 3, 1988, it will be a dream come true for commercial fishermen and representatives of allied industries throughout the Western Hemisphere.

The dream became a reality when H.L. Peace Expositions, Inc., sponsor of the ten-year-old International Work Boat Show set for the Superdome in December, 1988, created—after repeated requests from fishermen—the Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo.

The show, set for The Rivergate in New Orleans, will be highlighted by the popular fishing industry seminars, which have grown in popularity with each successive International Work Boat Show, and remain under the expert supervision of the Louisiana Sea Grant College Program.

Another show-goer's draw will be the national meeting of the Concerned Shrimpers of America, which will be held during the run of the show, March 3-5, 1988.

The Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo at The Rivergate, which is located in downtown New Orleans on the banks of the Mississippi River, will encompass not just fishing, but also processing and marketing aspects of the seafood industry.

Story Hour titles listed

Story programs are conducted Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m. at City-County Library on Hwy. 90 and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. at Waveland Library on Coleman Avenue.

The program at City-County will include "The Cat Who Couldn't Sleep," by Frances M. Fox; "Cats," by The Colour Library LTD.; "Angus and the Cat," by Majorie Flack; "Katie, Katie Capricorn" and "Cat Talk," physical activities; and the fingerplays "My Kitten" and "Cats."

"Rainbow Kittens," a flannelboard story; and the filmstrip "Millions of Cats" will also be presented.

Karen Peoples presents the City-County program and Helen Almond presents the Waveland program.

Scholarships available for child care workers

Individuals who work with preschool children can take advantage of the Child Development Associate (CDA) National Credentialing Program by contacting the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs' Commission for Children and Youth (CCY).

CCY recently received $10,952 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for assisting eligible individuals working in the child-care field who wish to gain national credentials.

To be eligible for a CDA scholarship, persons must be 18 years of age or older; sign a letter of professional conduct; have three formal or informal education experiences, two of which must be in the field of early childhood education/child development; have prior experience working with young children; and provide income verification. Applicants also must be able to participate in interviews with CDA and Local Assessment Team representatives.

Persons interested in applying for scholarships should contact the Commission for Children and Youth by Jan. 15. The address is 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson 39203, and telephone number is 949-2009.

One of the things many of us have to program ourselves to do is remember we are now in the year 1988.

It usually takes me a few days to remember the correct year when I am dating such things as checks.

The new year came in damp and soggy in our area, yet it could have been damp, soggy in addition to being very cold like other areas of the nation.

The day was good weather to sit back and watch the numerous bowl games on television, the only problem there are too many for such a short period.

We did talk to several folks who were on their way to the Sugar Bowl on Friday and hope they really enjoyed the game between Auburn and Syracuse.

It was a good game to view on television.

Seeking a pair of tickets for the Saints play-off game today has been a mad scramble.

Those who were able to make purchases were very lucky and should view a good game in the Dome today.

All I have to say is the Saints have come a very long way this season and it has come at a good time for the City of New Orleans.

I received a telephone call Thursday from Waveland resident Nancy Gex, who expressed her concern about the mural in the lobby of the old Bay St. Louis Post Office.

Mrs. Gex has been in conversation with Postmaster Tom Hill, and Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society regarding the mural.

Painted by the late Louis Raynaud for the Workers Progress Administration (WPA) during the big depression years, the mural is owned by the United States Postal Service.

The postmaster told me he has checked with the Postal Service and there are limited funds available to be used to remove and restore the mural possibly in the US-90 location scheduled to be opened on January 13.

The cost for the entire project is still a mystery according to Hill.

Gex, who among others is interested in retaining some of the county's heritage, is willing to coordinate a drive to obtain all the necessary funds.

As a matter of a fact she already has an art restoration expert scheduled to come in this week and meet with her and the postmaster to get an idea of the cost of such a project. Mrs. Gex said she will also consult with other experts.

Both Hill and Gex indicated they felt the proper place for the mural will be in the new Postal facility and will work towards that goal.

We are glad to see the interest expressed about the mural which has been displayed for some 50 years at the old Post Office building.

We do not know what agency, governmental organization, group or individual who will acquire the government's surplus facility, but one thing is for certain, it is a landmark in the City of Bay St. Louis.

Buildings are not constructed today as they were in the mid-30's when the old post office was constructed.

Persons interested in contacting Nancy Gex may call her at 467-7459.

National Kidney Foundation suggests an important New Year's resolution

We all know that keeping a New Year's Resolution isn't always easy. While our intentions are good and worthwhile, our determination runs out much too quickly. This year, the National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi would like to suggest a resolution that is vitally important and simple to follow. "Make a New Year's Resolution to sign an Organ Donor Card."

"It's one New Year's Resolution that's easy to keep," is the theme of a nationwide effort by the Foundation to call attention to the thousands of Americans awaiting lifesaving organ transplants and to encourage individuals to discuss their personal feelings about organ donation with their families.

Nearly 9,000 Americans received kidney transplants last year, but an additional 11,000 were kept waiting because of a lack of suitable organs. Hundreds died waiting for liver, heart and lung transplants.

The Kidney Foundation is asking Mississippians to think about organ donation and the fact that they have the ability to pass life on to someone who might not otherwise live.

The unnecessary shortage of transplantable organs must be combated by increasing public and professional awareness about the critical need for increased organ donation.

Family discussions are essential to the organ donation process for, even with a signed donor card, family consent must be obtained by the hospital before organs will be removed for transplantation.

More than 44 percent of those who have completed an Organ Donor Card do not know that this consent is needed.

Foundation officials are hopeful that with more Americans signing and carrying Organ Donor Cards and discussing this decision with their families, transplantation will be available to everyone who is in need.

The National Kidney Foundation was successful in its efforts to bring about the national Uniform Anatomical Gift Act of 1969, which recognized the Uniform Donor Card as a legal document throughout the United States. For more information on organ donation or on how you may obtain an Organ Donor Card free of charge, contact the National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi, Box 55802, Jackson, MS 39216.

Senator announces state ASCS committee members reappointed for 1988

Senator Thad Cochran says the five-member Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) state committee has been reappointed.

The senator said Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng has reappointed the following ASCS state committee members for 1988:

Hobson Gary of Schlatter, chairman; Braxton Bullock Jr. of Carson,

O.M. Tilley Sr. of Lucedale, James T. Estes of Noxapater, and Robert D. Anderson of Okolona.

"I am pleased that the Secretary has acted on our recommendation to reappoint these ASCS committee members. They have worked hard to serve the agricultural community in our state and to carry out the difficult responsibilities their jobs demand."

Senator Cochran is a ranking member of the Senate Agriculture Committee and of the Appropriations subcommittee on Agriculture and Rural Development.

The ASCS state committee, one for each of the five Congressional districts, guides administration and policy of USDA programs in Mississippi.

Make an important resolution for 'Life and Breath'

"If you are now smoking, a New Year's resolution to 'kick the habit' will be the best gift you can give to yourself and your family," said Mrs. Johnnie Tolleson of Kosciusko, president of the Mississippi Lung Association.

Because smoking is the most preventable cause of death in this country, smoking education/prevention/cessation programs are a major priority for the Christmas Seal voluntary health organization.

Tobacco smoke contains about 4,000 chemicals, of which 200 are poison. They include DDT, ammonia, arsenic, benzene, formaldehyde and carbon monoxide. Studies show that cigarette smoke is harmful to everyone who inhales it, not just the smoker. Children with parents who smoke have more respiratory illness and smoking by pregnant women increases the risk of low birth weight, miscarriage and death for newborn babies...indeed matters of "life and breath."

There is nothing healthy about inhaling hot smoke into lungs and there is much to be gained by quitting smoking. For example, a 30 to 35-year old two-pack-a-day smoker has a life expectancy 8 to 9 years shorter than a nonsmoker of the same age. The excess mortality noted in smokers is greatest for the 45 to 54-year old age group, for both men and women.

In addition to the increased death, smokers report more acute and chronic symptoms and illnesses than nonsmokers. The cost of smoking in lost work and productivity is rising. For the person under 50 who smokes over 2 packs of cigarettes a day, the lifetime loss in earnings and medical expenses is estimated to exceed $34,000.

Your decision to quit cigarette smoking could be the most important decision of your life...do it today!!!

For information about "Freedom from Smoking," contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9865, Jackson, Ms 39206 or phone 362-5453.

Reader questions wisdom for seat belt law in Mississippi

Dec. 21, 1987
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

On mandatory seat belt law:

Are we, the people, going to let a certain few individuals dictate another road law to us that we don't need?

The latest statistics on Mississippi highway fatalities is proving the lawmakers wrong on two counts when they passed the law that raised the drinking age to 21; this was supposed to reduce fatalities and not reduce federal highway funds.

To my knowledge, which source is The Sun Herald, it apparently didn't accomplish either.

Articles regarding fatalities from auto accidents being on the rise have been published several times in the last month.

And the highway commissioner had an item in the news a few months ago about having to draw more from state funds for road improvement because of less federal highway funds being available in this last fiscal year.

And didn't the state have to reduce the highway patrol force due to a money shortage? More manpower is what we need to enforce existing laws—not more laws and fewer lawmen.

Now the talk is about mandatory use of seat belts. If one wants to use a belt, let it be his prerogative. And here's something else to think about, Mr. Legislator. What about the school buses?

How much will it cost to equip them with belts? Maybe this is not in the plans. But if you don't order them on school buses and order their use in privately-owned autos, the court should be kept quite busy contesting citations for the offense.

As for infants and young children being restrained in car seats and belts, bravo! Children are the innocent victims of some irresponsible parents.

Speed is the big killer on the road. We need more lawmen to crack down harder on these offenders.

So citizens of Mississippi, let's write to our reps in Jackson and get this seat belt issue out of their heads but insist on finding the money to increase the highway patrol force to catch the speeders. Speed kills.

Two more facts you may like to know, people. Statistics show drunk drivers drive slower than the norm. How about that? And wearing a seat belt wouldn't reduce auto insurance premiums but making it mandatory to carry liability coverage would, and the legislature won't pass this one!

P.S. to Waveland P.D. You who probably are setting records for dinners with the governor for DUI arrests—what do you have to say in view of these facts?

Time unveils obscure artist

Nearly a century ago a teen-aged Mississippi girl and her doting mom boarded a train at the stylish railroad station at Holly Springs, Mississippi, and traveled to New York City with the dream of her becoming more than a commonplace girl.

Some 30 years later, not long after the death of her mother, Kate Freeman Clark returned to her hometown and resumed a commonplace lifestyle—nearly a recluse—until her death at age 81 in 1957.

The irony is that what happened to, with, and within "Miss Kate" during her absence from Mississippi is anything but commonplace. She became a notable artist under the tutelage of William Merritt Chase, this nation's most famous art master of that day, and painted well over 1,000 pictures that have been exhibited and widely acclaimed—and all kept by the artist.

Today, in the heart of this attractive county seat of Marshall County has been built an uncommon art gallery with 1,050 paintings done by the local artist who left town early in life with a dream and returned in her middle-aged years with it largely fulfilled although most of the world never heard of her.

This premise remains today. But if the small but growing following of the art of Kate Clark continues, this north Mississippi village will attract disciples from all corners of the world anxious to share the realistic and idealistic world painted for three decades by this sensitive artist.

Stranger than it may seem is the fact that rural Mississippi and picturesque Holly Springs are not included in the artist's subject matter. Most of the scenes are of outdoor settings in New York State where the artist was considered the foremost pupil of art instructor Chase.

Recently I visited Holly Springs and sat and talked with Mrs. Gertrude McAlexander and Fort Gholson, trustees of the Kate Freeman Clark Memorial Art Gallery in the heart of the town, built as near in keeping with terms of Miss Kate's will as possible. Theirs has been a momentous task and an improbable one for this modern agricultural county seat town built in the 19th century on the good fortunes of cotton.

Not only did the trustees and town fall heir to an art trove that staggers the imagination in its quality, but is the largest collection of art by a single artist housed in a single museum anywhere in the world today.

Fortunately, the trustees discovered, Miss Kate's art was mostly well cared for and had been stored safely in a warehouse until it came into their hands. After 40 years of storage the paintings needed little attention to present them at their best for exhibit.

But there was a museum to be built adjacent to Miss Kate's home, there were many hundreds of frames to be built, there were environmental needs to preserve the paintings over the years—such as proper light, temperature, and humidity levels with specified tolerances that should be on a par with national museums functioning under heavily endowed memorial gifts. Yet their funds at Holly Springs were meager.

Gertrude McAlexander was a personal friend and banker for Miss Kate in the latter years of her life, and has valuable insights into the Kate Clark personality that has served her well as a trustee.

Fort Gholson is a young businessman and family friend who grew up across the street from the Clark home and has been a part of the legend and truth of the artist since childhood. He gave this writer a personal tour of the gallery, stopping often at paintings that had special meanings to him.

Today two of Miss Kate's paintings comprise half of an American painting exhibition at the U.S. Embassy in Berlin, Germany. Others have been loaned for exhibition in Bonn, Paris, and other European culture centers as well as in major cities of the U.S. Several exhibitions have been held in Mississippi.

The lending, packaging and shipping of these art treasures by this little known Mississippi artist is just one of the responsibilities of these enthusiastic trustees of the art of the late Kate Freeman Clark—a late 19th and early 20th century artist whose unique station in life remains a puzzle to most.

A book "Kate Freeman Clark—A Painter Rediscovered" by Cynthia Grant Tucker was published in 1981, following scholarly research into the life of this Mississippi painter whose name someday may even become a household word in the native state she abandoned for half of her lifetime during the fulfillment of a dream of her youth.

It is no secret that she was considered by Chase as his most promising protégée and by her artist peers today as a great talent. Her paintings grasp the realism of New York's rural landscapes as firmly as the bark of the sycamore trees whose painstaking color and line lead viewers down dimensional paths she saw and preserved to defy seasons and time.

Tragically, in that day her feminism had to be overcome, and she signed most of her paintings Freeman Clark in order to obscure her sex at a time when ladies were not fully licensed in the public mind for such liberties.

As her style and technique were perfected she ranked with the best of the realistic painters, and managed no small measure of effective realism in some of her outdoor portraits. Yet she never quite fit into the tempo of her time as 19th century art changed and conformed to more modern, less realistic interpretations.

When her mother, who was both chaperone and aide, died in New York, Miss Kate packed her personal things and came home. She laid her brushes down and never commanded them anymore, even though she had achieved the touch of a master.

Returning to Holly Springs at midday of her unusual life, she slipped into a contented oblivion. Only in recent years have influences been put in play that slowly but surely will focus international celebrity attention on this little Mississippi girl who followed her dreams into an unending one.

Dairy Nutrition

Cold days and nights are upon us. Dairy producers should monitor the weather report as an aid to feeding dairy cattle. On cold, wet, windy days feed should be increased to compensate for energy the cow needs to stay warm and carry on bodily functions without decreasing her milk output. Our cool season forages need to be brought on as soon as possible as these plants give increased output of milk.

Fields should be evaluated to determine if ammonia nitrate is needed to speed up growth. It would also be advisable to apply ammonia nitrate early and let the ground harden off before harsh cold spells. If you need help with your winter pasture, call me at 467-5456.

Taxes and Timber

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 will have a great impact on most Americans. It will also have a big impact on timber. The bill retains a major provision of timber taxation, the Reforestation Tax Incentives Act of 1979.

This means that the first 10,000 dollars of regeneration costs are still eligible for a 10 percent Regeneration Tax Credit and the 7 year amortization period. Land owners will fall into these categories depending upon how intensive they manage their timber land.

The three categories are: Investor, Trade or Business-possible management, and Trade or Business—active management.

Land owner should remember that income averaging is gone in 1987. However with the right planning, an installment type sales can still be carried out.

To sell or not sell? This is the question most folks need to know. Each case needs to be studied by its own merit. Sometimes a small increase in timber stumpage is needed to offset the increase in taxes.

If you're considering selling your timber, be sure and visit with an accountant trained in forestry sales. The taxes you pay may overshadow the return you get from the sale.

The Fair Association appreciates the good turnout at this year's Fair. Besides the livestock there were various types of entertainment to suit just about anyone.

Several people made the comment that this year's Fair was a great family activity. We here at the County Extension Office look for an even better Fair next year.

SOIL FERTILITY

Fall is an excellent time to test your soil. Many people think only farmers soil test, but this is far from true. A soil test is like a prescription from the doctor. The soil test can in essence tell you how to treat your sick soil.

By taking a test in the fall you find out if you need lime. All soils in Hancock County are inherently acid and need lime to make them more productive. The test will also tell you how much nitrogen, phosphorus and potash you need to correct deficiencies.

So it pays to test no matter if you're a gardener, soybean producer or a beef producer. Remember the old saying, "don't guess, soil test!"

LANDOWNER INCOME

Many land owners in Hancock County are missing an opportunity to make money off their land. As hunting season approaches more hunters are competing for a place to hunt.

Land that is available for hunting is constantly getting smaller. This gives the landowner an opportunity to lease his land to an individual or club for the hunting rights. This lease may be for only a particular species or a year long lease. Most clubs or individuals, however, want a long term lease of at least 5 years.

Quail hunting preserves have become popular in some counties with the land owner supplying the quail and the dogs for a days hunt. Several land owners sponsor dove hunts where hunters pay a daily or a season fee to hunt.

Land owners must look to new methods to make their land pay its way. We now live in a recreation oriented society and leasing land for wildlife programs is an option land owners can consider.

You haven't found the best deal on a new or used car until you stop here!

Rice gives special touch to extend food budget

During the holidays, budgets always are tight. Rice is one food that can help you stretch your budget. It's economical, delicious, nutritious, versatile, easy to prepare and bland enough to pair with almost any other food to the advantage of both.

The original convenience food, rice is easy to store and takes little pantry shelf space. Every ounce is edible, so there's no waste and it comes to you ready to cook. It doesn't even need washing since it's mechanically milled and cleaned.

Rice has earned a place for itself in the diets of babies, all the way through special diets of all ages to elderly people.

Nutritionally, rice is a primary source of energy—an inexpensive one, too. Milled or white rice contributes high quality vegetable protein as well as some calcium, iron and B vitamins.

Brown rice, because it is unpolished with only the fibrous hull removed, retains more natural salts, vitamins and minerals than white rice. Parboiled rice is treated to a special steam-pressure process which insures greater retention of food nutrients.

Though there are more than 7,000 varieties of rice produced throughout the world, you need concern yourself with only three different lengths and four different kinds:

► Long grain rice is easily detected because its length is four to five times its width. The grains are clear and translucent. They remain distinct and separate after cooking.

► Medium grain rice is about three times as long as its width. Because this type requires a shorter growing season, produces higher yields per acre, and is easier to mill than long grain rice, it is slightly less expensive.

► Short grain rice is only one and a half to two times as long as its width.

► Brown rice is the whole, unpolished grain of rice with only the outer, inedible, fibrous hull removed. Brown rice requires more water and longer cooking time than white rice, but it has a delightful, chewy texture and nutlike flavor.

Regular milled white rice is rice from which hulls, germ, outer bran layers, and most of the inner bran are removed in the milling process.

The grains are bland in flavor and fluffed when you follow cooking directions.

Parboiled rice is rice that has been cooked before milling by special steam pressure process. This treatment aids in the retention of much of the natural vitamins and minerals. It requires a longer cooking time than regular milled white rice, but after cooking, the grains are fluffy, separate and plump. You may notice a slight nut-like flavor.

Pre-cooked rice (quick-type) is completely cooked. It needs only to stand in boiling water to be ready for serving.

Wild rice is not rice at all, but the seed of a wild grass found around the Great Lakes region. It is much more expensive than the types of rice just described.

Rice is an excellent extender. Its ability to take on flavors can make small amounts of more expensive foods go farther. It's great for salads, side dishes, stuffings and many festive ways that are especially nice for the holidays.

Marian Holley of Columbus is principal instructor and coordinator of the Northern Mississippi Area. She will be assisted by Ed and Jane Hunter of Amory.

Mrs. Ruby Thompson of Clinton, state director of the AARP Tax-Aide Program, is the principal instructor and coordinator of the Central Mississippi Area.

John Brauchle will be principle instructor for the Hattiesburg area.

MaryEllen Iverson is coordinator for that area.

Maury Herman, coordinator for the Gulf Coast, will be the principal instructor for this area.

The principal instructors for each area will train prospective Tax-Aide counselors in their respective areas in preparation for the 1987 Federal and State Income Tax filing season.

The training session for counselors will be conducted in Jackson, Jan. 4-7; in Meridian, Jan. 11-14; in Gulfport, Jan. 18-21; in Tupelo, Jan. 18-21; and in Hattiesburg, Jan. 25-28.

Prospective tax-aid counselors will successfully complete the course will provide assistance to elderly taxpayers of low to moderate means during the eleven week period from Feb. 1 through April 15.

Tax-Aide assistance will be provided on the Gulf Coast at Bay St. Louis Library, Waveland Library, Gulfport Library, U.S. Naval Home, Orange Grove Library, Mashburn residence (Biloxi), Metropolitan National Bank (Biloxi), St. Martin Library, Popp's Ferry Library, Long Beach Library, Pass Christian Library, Pascagoula Library, and the Ocean Springs Library.

Operating dates and hours for these sites will be publicized during the eleven-week filing season.

Persons in Hancock, Harrison, and Jackson Counties who want to be trained as tax-aid counselors for the 1987 filing season should contact Maury Herman by calling 875-9787 or by mail at 104 White Blvd., Ocean Springs, MS 39564.

Secretary of State proposes election law changes

Secretary of State Dick Molpus has announced legislative proposals for improving the State's election laws.

"In a democratic society, our election laws require constant attention," stated Molpus, "and we are announcing proposals that protect the integrity of the election process, yet guarantee that all our citizens will have the right to both register and vote."

Molpus previously sponsored an Election Law Reform Task Force in 1984 whose recommendations resulted in the reorganized Election Code of 1986.

"In 1986 we worked to get extended polling hours, mandatory training of election officials, campaign finance reporting by PACs, among other improvements," said Molpus. "The new code allows us now to focus more clearly on the operation of these laws, and we see room for improvement. These laws must be maintained and I aim to see that they are."

Molpus' proposals include: (1), eliminating the list of disqualifying crimes and the imposition of a felony standard for both the removal of voters from the registration rolls and public officials from office;

(2), stronger enforcement of state election laws against fraud and abuse through the granting of authority to investigate to the Secretary of State and authority to prosecute to the Attorney General;

(3), the extension of the absentee ballot to persons on vacation; and (4), more stringent safeguards in absentee balloting. Additionally, election day duties and procedures will be examined.

"There have been problems with the enforcement of our election laws and I want to change that," stated Molpus. "I want to send a clear signal that election fraud will not be tolerated."

Election officials working with Molpus on this legislative project include circuit clerks, election commissioners and municipal clerks, and a representative from the Attorney General's office.

Molpus cited a need for more uniformity and coordination in the application of these laws, remarking that elections are handled at the county level in Mississippi. Under Molpus, however, the Office of the Secretary of State has become active in the development and administration of the State's election laws.

Molpus also stressed that in response to a recent federal court order in the PUSH v. Allain lawsuit new initiatives on voter registration laws would be necessary this session. The lawsuit challenged state dual registration and restrictive off-site registration requirements. The Court will impose certain procedures to make registration more accessible if legislation is not adopted.

Molpus stated that he would strongly advocate that the State take steps that go beyond the requirements of the order. "The deputization of all municipal clerks, mail-in registration, off-site registration opportunities and the retroactive full registration of persons who had registered with only a municipal clerk or circuit clerk prior to the elimination of dual registration in 1984, are matters which must be considered in complying with the order."

Mississippi Arts Commission establishes Governor's Awards in the Arts

In 1988 for the first time, Mississippi will recognize the achievements of its artists, arts patrons, Governor's Awards in the Arts.

The Mississippi Arts Commission, along with the Governor's office, will give awards to seven Mississippians for their outstanding accomplishments in the arts.

Recipients will be selected from a list of recommendations provided by citizens throughout the state.

The awards, framed photographs by Mississippi photographer, Birney Imes, will be given at a ceremony in Jackson, February 23, 1988.

Governor-elect Ray Mabus has said of the arts: "It is my belief that a state without a vibrant artistic community is nothing more than a land without a vision." He has also linked the arts with one of his major concerns, economic development.

"As we work to lure new business to Mississippi, a topic which often comes up is the quality of life in our state. Invariably, I point to Mississippi's artistic community and rich culture."

The purpose of the governor's Awards in the Arts is to honor those individuals and organizations who have made valuable contributions to the quality of Mississippi's arts, natural environment, or cultural life in general.

"The arts truly touch the lives of all citizens in Mississippi," said Carroll Case, executive director of the Arts Commission in announcing the awards, so there are a number of categories open for recommendations.

The categories are: individual artist, patron of the arts, community or city, corporation, arts organization, arts education program.

There is also a seventh category, Distinguished Career Achievement Citation, for a Mississippian involved in the arts whose achievements merit special recognition.

Those eligible for the award include meritorious individuals or organizations who are residents of the state or who operate in the state, with the exception of the Distinguished Career Achievement Citation, which may be given to a native Mississippian now residing outside the state. Those nominated may represent any geographic region of the state and any of the arts program. The criteria for determining the selection of award recipients will be quality and excellence.

Recommendations for the awards are due at the Arts Commission, office by Jan. 15, 1988. Forms for making recommendations may be obtained from the Mississippi Arts Commission, 301 North Lamar, Suite 400, Jackson, MS 39201. The Arts Commission's phone number is 354-7336.

The Mississippi Arts Commission is a state agency that provides services and funds to artists and arts organizations in the state. It is funded by the State of Mississippi and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

Special January programs slated at Davis Bayou

A variety of special activities and programs are scheduled for Sundays during January at the Davis Bayou area of Gulf Islands National Seashore in Ocean Springs.

Superintendent Jerry Eubanks said the programs begin on Sunday, Jan. 3 at 2 p.m. at the William Colmer Visitor Center when a park volunteer will present a one and one-half hour program on 'Bayou Birding.'

Slide presentation and guided walk will feature the birds that winter along the bayou.

On Sunday, Jan. 10 at 2 p.m., a park volunteer will lead a 'Photo Hike.'

Bring camera and film, flash attachments and tripods, learn methods of nature photography from a professional photographer, Eubanks urges.

Meet at the Visitor Center for this hour and a half program.

Sunday, Jan. 17 at 2 p.m., there will be a 'Water's Edge Hike' which will begin from the Visitor Center and follow the edge of the marsh for a close look at the variety of plants and animals living along the water's edge.

A park ranger will begin a Nature's Way Trail on Sunday, Jan. 24 at 2 p.m. for the MARSH program.

The program, lasting one and one-half hours, will feature the motion, adaptation, roles, similarities and habitat that influence the design of the marsh and its inhabitants.

The special activities will conclude for the month on Sunday, Jan. 31 at 2 p.m. at the Visitor Center with the Kid's Wilderness Survival Program.

A park ranger will instruct children ages 5 to 12 and their parents on how to hike safely in the woods and what to do should they become lost in the woods.

All activities are free of charge and open to the public. For more information on these and other interpretive activities available through the Davis Bayou area of Gulf Islands National Seashore, phone (601) 875-0821.

Four buildings added to National Register

JACKSON—Four structures in Bay St. Louis have been listed on the National Register of Historic Places, according to Elbert R. Hilliard, state preservation officer and director of the Department of Archives and History.

The buildings, Glen Oak, Taylor House, Taylor School, and Webb School, will be included as an amendment to the Bay St. Louis Multiple Resource Area.

Bay St. Louis contains a collection of buildings constructed from 1790 to the 1940s. The four buildings included in the amendment were constructed between 1812 and 1913. Their primary significance is their architectural importance, but additional significance is attached to the schools because of their role in education.

Glen Oak is believed to have been constructed in 1820 by Louis Alexis Lassassier. Its primary significance is its Shingle Style architecture, a style that coincided with the community's peak as a seaside resort. Glen Oak is the only example of Shingle Style architecture in Bay St. Louis. The only other known coastal structure built in this style is the Ocean Springs.

The Taylor House, constructed ca. 1910, is a good example of an antebellum house form built at the turn of the century. Although some twentieth century elements, such as three-sided bays and corbelled chimneys, are employed, its basic form is similar to surviving antebellum residences built before the Civil War.

The Taylor and Webb schools are both early twentieth century buildings. Taylor School, built in the Craftsman-Style, was erected in 1910. This architectural style is extremely uncommon for institutional buildings and is usually associated with residential architecture.

The Webb School is the only early twentieth century Colonial Revival style school building on the Mississippi Gulf Coast that has been surveyed. It was constructed in 1913.

Both schools are indicative of one and two teacher schools that represent the public education system on the coast at the turn of the century.

The National Register program is administered in Mississippi by the Department of Archives and History and identifies those properties worthy of preservation for their historical, architectural, or cultural significance. It also provides some measure of protection from alteration by federally supported programs.

Frederick S. Kohl named Pass Christian 'Outstanding Citizen'

Frederick S. Kohl named Pass Christian's Outstanding Citizen for 1987, and the award was presented posthumously to his son, Steven R. Kohl, by Charles M. Taylor, president of the Rotary Club at a recent dinner co-sponsored by the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Kohl, an Ohio native, graduated from the University of Michigan, worked as an Electrical Engineer for General Electric for 33 years.

He retired from General Electric and resided in Pass Christian with his family for over 25 years.

During that time, he served as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1975; was city alderman-at-large for four years; served on the City Planning Commission and the Zoning Board of Adjustments; was on the Wastewater Commission Board; was a member of the Pass Christian Historical Society; was a member of Trinity Episcopal Church where he served on the vestry and was chairman of the Episcopal Retirement Home Committee.

He founded the Holly Ridge Christmas Tree Farm and was preparing for the Christmas season at the time of his death in September 1987.

Outgoing Chamber president Evelyn Gregory presented awards of appreciation to Christmas at the Pass Chairmen Paige Reed Johnson, Malee Hearin and Wanda Tracy; Mayor John Erwin, chairman of the Blessing of the Fleet; and to outgoing board members Irwin Bothe, Dr. Thad Carter and Walter Martin.

New officers of the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce installed for 1988 are Dr. W.K. Steward, President and Wanda Tracy, Vice-President.

New board members installed are Roland Martin, Marie Peralta, Frank Ruspoli, Otis Trepagnier and James Williams. Laurie S. Matkin will serve as executive secretary.

Enjoy "energy" fruits during holiday

Good food buys

A hectic schedule of holiday shopping and parties can leave you feeling tired and worn out. Proper exercise and diet, together can alleviate effects of fatigue.

Exercise physiologists recommend that to feel more energetic, step up the pace; not slow down.

Increasing physical activity can produce a feeling of an energy "high," ease depression, and lead to a more relaxed sleep at night.

To have more pep and endurance incorporate some kind of regular exercise program into a daily routine.

Eating right and eating light is particularly important during the holiday season when many people overindulge in festive foods and even skip meals to keep up with busier schedules.

This is the height of the citrus season. Look for fruit that is firm and heavy for its size. Refrigerate until ready to use. The following varieties of citrus are now available.

Naval oranges are deep yellow color, extra large fruit. They peel and section easily. Best supply: November to January.

Hamlin is smooth surface and medium size. It's an excellent juice orange. Best supply: October to December.

Temple oranges are small with deep orange color. They peel easily. Best supply: January to March.

Tangelo is a large fruit. A cross between tangerine and grapefruit. Deep orange in color. Best supply: December to March.

Tangerine is small or medium fruit, easy to peel and deeply colored. It has a rich sweet flavor. Best supply: November to February.

Marsh Seedless Grapefruit has smooth yellow skin and is medium size, usually flattened on each end. Contains less than eight seeds. Best supply: November to June.

Pink Seedless Grapefruit is similar to Marsh Seedless Grapefruit, except that the meat of the fruit has a pink or reddish tint. Best supply: October to May.

To keep energy up and weight down try these tricks: A half grapefruit is a quick snack that provides energy to carry you through an afternoon of shopping.

Adopt an either/or principle at the beginning of each meal. Choose between a drink or an appetizer, an appetizer or a dessert, a dessert or a slice of bread.

Use orange or grapefruit juice as the base for holiday punches. Four ounces of orange juice has approximately 60 calories, while four ounces of nonalcoholic eggnog has 170 calories.

When your favorite food is served at a meal, enjoy it first; it will be easier to stop eating.

Fresh oranges, tangerines and grapefruit make a wonderfully light and refreshing dessert after a heavy holiday meal. Citrus is high in nutrients and has a sweet taste without many calories.

Sip orange juice and club soda while cooking. This is a good way to avoid nibbling and tasting before serving.

When your energy lags in the late afternoon, pick yourself up with a juicy orange or tangerine. Fruit contains three different natural sugars: sucrose and glucose which act quickly to raise the blood sugar, and slower acting fructose. Together, these natural sugars make fruit an ideal energy-giving snack.

The refined sugar in hard candy or chocolate are effective, but temporary sources of quick energy. Refined sugar is rapidly absorbed into the body causing a surge of non-lasting energy. The level of blood sugar then declines just as rapidly producing an energy slump.

Fruit juices which are available at most snack counters also are a good source of energy. Take a break from holiday shopping to sample orange and grapefruit juices. Fruits and fruit juices are easily packed in a brown paper bag for a lunch or snack break during shopping.

Hospitals co-sponsoring elderly care workshop

Gulf Oaks Hospital and Clinic and Hancock Medical Center are co-sponsoring "Tender Loving Care—Home Care for the Elderly," free workshop for the public, Wednesday, Jan. 13 from 1 until 5 p.m. at Hancock Medical Center in Bay St. Louis.

Addressing the needs of the people who take care of the elderly in a home setting, physicians, rehabilitation therapists, nurses and dieticians will be on hand to discuss depression in the elderly, sensory losses in the elderly, medical needs of the aging adult, home care for the elderly, healthy eating, Medicare, and community resources in caring for the elderly.

Free refreshments will be provided and a question and answer period will follow the discussion with time allowed for a tour of Hancock Medical Center.

Pre-registration is requested. For more information about this free program or to make a reservation, call 467-9081, extension 2200.

DOWN HOME

THE REMODELING PLAN
If you have decided to remodel your home then you need to think about some design ideas.

It is important to consolidate ideas about the whole project. Start by collecting pictures and talking to friends who have remodeled. Then visit model homes and building supply showrooms. A county Extension Service home economist also can help with ideas.

Make some type of rough sketches to show the new design concepts. Measure the house and put it down on paper. Indicate where plumbing, electrical and gas lines are now. Show the location of doors, windows, heat registers, lighting fixtures and electrical outlets. It is best to use 1/4 inch graph paper letting one square equal one foot. Use scale cutouts of furniture and appliances to help with room arrangements.

You may need additional professional advice to help you work out a final plan from your rough sketches. An architect, engineer, contractor or home building can help in this process. Discuss structural soundness, design aspects and a cost estimate for the project. Check local building code requirements to be sure the project is within their specifications.

Investigate the many building products and materials and evaluate the range of prices, colors, varying degrees of durability and care. Take time to visit building suppliers and study magazines to learn about new products. Also visit any home shows available in your area.

The final step is to develop a set of workable remodeling plans. Decide if help is needed at this point. Design is more than just appearance. It also entails functional and structural considerations. Whether all the decisions that need attention can be made will depend upon a person's abilities and experience. Structural design can often be handled by a good contractor.

A draftsman, building contractor, architect or engineer can put your ideas on paper. The services for professional plans vary and the differences should be investigated. In general, an architect costs more than a draftsman, but if you project entails a lot of structural design changes, the money may be well spent. Be sure to get estimates from several sources before deciding.

Adventure Stories: An Old Tradition

by Ernest Herndon

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization. Ernest Herndon, a writer for the McComb Enterprise-Journal, is author of "In the Hearts of Wild Men," a nonfiction book describing a New Guinea expedition, and an adventure novel, "The One to Eat Man," to be released by Zondervan in 1988.

Once upon a time in days of yore, people liked to gather around and listen to someone relate stories of adventure.

They still do.

I had the experience of being asked to speak for the McComb Nautilus Club. (The club was named for the intricate seashell with many chambers, not the exercise equipment). Little did I suspect when stranded in a New Guinea jungle village in 1981 that one day I would entertain groups of McCombites with my experiences.

And of course it's hard to translate very grim and unpleasant experiences into enjoyable tea-party talk, but that's what a storyteller is supposed to do, in the hallowed tradition.

Novelist Joseph Conrad probably set the scene of such adventure storytellings better than anyone. In stories like "Heart of Darkness," he had the old sailors gather at night following a big meal, sipping from snifters of brandy and puffing thoughtfully on cheroots. The character Marlow would then unfold his unusual adventures in remote corners of the world.

Reading such books—where an entire novel constitutes a single evening's talk by Marlow—one wonders whatever happened to this excellent tradition.

Can you imagine sitting up all night listening to someone tell a story, even if it is an incredible one? First off, who could tell it in such a way to command attention? And second, wouldn't it interfere with whatever's on TV, besides keeping you up late?

Such are the sad facts of modern life.

But at the Nautilus Club meeting, I was pleased to find sort of a scaled-down version of the Marlow scene. There were no cigars, brandy or sailors. But I found myself addressing about 15 women in a comfortable parlor, sipping on coffee or spiced tea and polished off pecan pies.

After eating, the storytelling—my part—began.

There was no podium, slide-show or microphone. I sat in a comfortable easy chair under the interested gaze of these listeners. With no props to support what could be a boring talk, I simply had to let my tale unfold and stand on its own merits.

I told of our five-day trip to a remote village in New Guinea—a day and a half upriver by canoe, four days by foot through uninhabited, jungled mountains. Of how our guide turned against us and not only refused to guide us out, but threatened to kill anyone who did. Of how we put out an SOS and languished 10 days, sick with malaria, until at last a helicopter pilot saw the signal and landed.

The actual scenes of that experience—nights in the smoky huts, secret plots to set a message out, receiving messages that tribal war had broken out with two men killed—contrasted severely with the plush surroundings of the Nautilus Club hostess' home and the immaculate dress of the listeners.

The story did not exactly last all night—just under an hour, in fact. There were questions and answers and some interesting discussion afterward.

But it was just enough of the old storytelling situation that it made me wonder—suppose we had all night? Suppose there had been a better, more experienced storyteller than I?

If the setting were right, could we tone down our hast and just listen? I have to wonder. It would take a conscious effort of will to still my wandering attention for a several-hour stretch, and yet if the teller was good, it would be worth the wait, or the lack of sleep.

We are geared to a short attention span these days, fed our entertainments in 30-minute or one-hour segments—or if we're really serious, nearly two hours at the movies.

And many of us work hard, have demanding jobs, and don't particularly cotton to sitting around idle for long spells.

But in cases it might well be worth it. The Nautilus Club gave me a taste of the pleasure of storytelling, and even more pleasant would be listening to someone else tell a good story. The club is designed for its members to learn more about culture, and it has more interesting speakers than I, such as a state of ballet official and a circuit judge.

I salute them for taking the time to listen, and wish that others of us may learn to slow down and do the same.

Garden Park receives honor

L.V. Johnston, executive director for AMI Garden Park Community Hospital, Gulfport, was one of 300 executives of the top management team to attend American Medical International's annual Executive Forum in Phoenix, Arizona during November.

During the Executive Forum which consisted of 135 executive directors from around the world, Johnston was one of 46 singled-out at the awards banquet.

Johnston was cited for the second year in a row for the outstanding quality of service performed by the staff and operations at Garden Park for fiscal year 1987 by Walter L. Weisman, president and chief executive officer for AMI.

Weisman presented Johnston with the Management Performance Award.

This particular achievement was based on the overall quality of service performed and 50 percent of that quality was based on former patients' interviews by an independent agency throughout the year.

"AMI Garden Park Community Hospital is proud to provide the Mississippi Gulf coast with the finest health care available," added Johnston, and "we will continue to strive to achieve such excellence."

DIABETES

Living with it takes a lifetime of care. Proper nutrition, regular exercise, carefully administered medications. It's a regimen vitally important to the thousands of diabetics in St. Tammany Parish.

At Slidell Memorial Hospital, we offer a full range of educational and medical programs to aid diabetics north of the Lake. Nutritional counseling. Individually-tailored exercise programs. Educational classes. Consultations on your medications. And a special diabetic program at Slidell Memorial Hospital with physicians who know and care about your special problem.

Call our special Diabetic instructor, Anne Thomas, at 501-649-8555 Slidell Memorial Hospital for more information about our programs for diabetes.

Leases for hunters and landowners

Leasing land benefits both the hunter and the landowners. With the price of hunting going up over the last several years, leasing is the simplest way for the landowner to tap this source of income. Hunters benefit from leasing in that they get exclusive hunting rights to quality land; then they can often manage wildlife and improve their hunting.

Landowners often prefer to lease their land for several reasons. Lessees can help post land and deter trespassers; some may help maintain roads and gates. Lessees may also help pay for improvements like wildlife food plots and cover plantings, which in turn make the wildlife resources more valuable. And, last but not least there is money.

The first step for the landowner to do is advertise. The local paper is a good starting point, but big city newspapers, within a two or three-hour drive, should also be considered. A higher price may be gotten from large cities. Hunting magazines are also a good place to advertise. The primary leasing season is spring and summer and should be kept in mind when advertising.

What should a landowner charge? The best way to find out is by responding to other advertisements and by asking around. Many current leases are under priced—try for a price on the high side.

Landowners should have a proper lease for their protection. All lease agreements should be in writing and include the following items. All people included in the agreement should sign.

If the Lessees want to bring guests, prepare a form so that they take written responsibility for them. Have an understanding of whether or not the lease is transferable. The lease should include a legal description of the land that can be hunted; for example are you leasing all of your land or only a portion.

There are other points to consider that should be stated in the lease. State the price and method of payment (which should be made in advance).

The beginning and ending dates of the lease should be stated. Also there are the decisions of whether the lease is for all year or just the hunting season, and whether or not it is a long-term lease.

Another consideration is what kinds of hunting is included, deer, small game, quail, ducks or fishing. And what about fur trapping? Fur revenues could help pay the taxes; maybe the trapping rights should be leased separately.

To protect their property, landowners should prohibit hunters from cutting or damaging trees. Mark particular trees and require hunters to use dead wood for campfires. Specify that the hunters may not put nails in trees. Nails ruin timber and firewood.

A "hold harmless" clause is not infallible protection against a lawsuit, but puts the odds of winning in the landowners favor. The landowner should consult with an insurance agent about extending coverage or consider requiring the lessee to purchase liability insurance.

Add a clause that allows you, the landowner, to end the lease if hunters violate game laws, litter, encroachment on neighbors, or misbehave in some other way.

A landowner can write up his own lease, but it is advisable to have a lawyer to look over and approve it. His advice is worth paying for and he can prepare a lease to your specifications.

Leasing is a new option for hunting on private land. It benefits both hunter and landowner through a mutual agreement.

Mrs. Garcia describes him as a "good old genteel fellow" who was "just a little mischievous" as a youth.

She reminds him of the time he told her about getting in trouble for taking women's corsets and hanging them in the trees and bushes.

Vairin says, "yes, I may have been a bit mischievous," and tells of a small hole in a wall of the building used by the girls for changing clothes at the beach.

for this district," according to Ronald Cuevas.

The eight objectives the board members have agreed to pursue during the next four years are
"things we can accomplish,"
Cuevas said.

He added, "We feel this can be done with no additional taxes. We are unanimously opposed to any increase in taxes. All of us feel that we are already a tax burden to the hilt."

Those objectives include:
—Reactivating the Sand Beach
Technical Advisory Council and beginning an annual and systematic development of the beach and roadway;

—Beginning a program to identify all dirt roads in the county and study
the possibility of blacktopping them in order to reduce annual overall maintenance requirements;

—Further expanding the unit system by directing all county departments to have scheduled and non-scheduled maintenance and

The Bay St. Louis Council voted in favor of a Medical Office zoning on a piece of property owned by Dr.
James Crittendon facing
Drinkwater Lane.

Crittendon has been seeking zoning on this parcel of land since August 1985.

Following his initial request, the
Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission got the Gulf Regional Planning Commission to do a study of the entire area around the new hospital.

GRPC's recommendation included establishment of a new zoning area to allow health-related facilities to be built adjacent to the new hospital and rezoning of all land facing Drinkwater Road.

However, although the commission recommended for approval the new zoning category and the zoning
of surrounding property, the city council was unable to get a successful motion passed for the rezoning.

Area residents appeared because 20 percent or more of the property owners within 150 feet of the property petition for rezoning protested a 4-1 one vote by the council was necessary for the zoning to pass.

On the two parcels most recently submitted for rezoning, only one will be rezoned.

The motion for rezoning on this parcel which lies on Drinkwater Road between Sciana and Benigno lanes, passed with a 3-2 vote.

A 4-1 vote was not necessary for the motion to pass on this parcel because there were no signatures on the petition against the zoning by 20 percent or more of the landowners within 150 feet of the area in question.

The second parcel which is on the corner of Drinkwater and Paradise Lane received a 3-2 vote but required a 4-1 vote to pass.

Voting in favor of the zoning were Councilmen James Thriftley, Willmer Seymour and Charles Johnson. Councilmen Lisa Coward and John Wilkerson voted nay.

As railroad detective, Vairin was in charge of protecting railroad property and checking the cars in the station.

He recalls several times catching robbers at work in the train cars and thinks it odd how some robbers would break open the cars and packaging and other would be very particular at how they got the car
open.

Being a railroad detective could also be scary because he had to go
all kinds of places, sometimes alone.

"But I could arrest anybody in New Orleans that broke the law and made $10 more a month than the city policeman," Vairin said.

Vairin gave up his career with the railroad because he wanted to travel all over the United States, but not long after he quit the Great Depression hit and Vairin stayed in Hancock County to help his family.

Vairin never married but recalls the great love of his life as Lucy McFarland, formerly of Hancock County.

visor for this district," according to Ronald Cuevas.

The eight objectives the board
members have agreed to pursue
during the next four years are
"things we can accomplish,"
Cuevas said.

He added, "We feel this can be done with no additional taxes. We are unanimously opposed to any increase in taxes. All of us feel that we are already a tax burden to the hill."

Those objectives include:
—Reactivating the Sand Beach
Technical Advisory Council and
beginning an annual and systematic development of the beach and roadway;

—Beginning a program to identify
all dirt roads in the county and study
the possibility of blacktopping them
in order to reduce annual overall
maintenance requirements;

—Further expanding the unit
system by directing all county departments to have scheduled and non-scheduled maintenance and

The Bay St. Louis Council voted in favor of a Medical Office zoning on a piece of property owned by Dr.
James Crittendon facing
Drinkwater Lane.

Crittendon has been seeking zoning on this parcel of land since August 1985.

Following his initial request, the
Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission got the Gulf Regional Planning Commission to do a study of the entire area around the new hospital.

GRPC's recommendation included establishment of a new zoning
area to allow health-related facilities to be built adjacent to the new hospital and rezoning of all land
facing Drinkwater Road.

However, although the commission recommended for approval the
new zoning category and the zoning
of surrounding property, the city council was unable to get a successful motion passed for the rezoning.

Area residents appeared

property owners within 150 feet of the property petition for rezoning protested a 4-1 one vote by the council was necessary for the zoning to pass.

On the two parcels most recently submitted for rezoning, only one will be rezoned.

The motion for rezoning on this
parcel which lies on Drinkwater
Road between Sciana and Beningo lanes, passed with a 3-2 vote.

A 4-1 vote was not necessary for the motion to pass on this parcel because there were no signatures on the petition against the zoning by 20
percent or more of the landowners
within 150 feet of the area in question.

The second parcel which lies on corner of Drinkwater and Beningo Lane received 10 signatures but required a 4-1 vote.

at charge in the case, and that property and checking the cars in the station.

He recalls several times catching robbers at work in the train cars and
thinks it odd how some robbers
would break open the cars and packaging and other would be very particular at how they got the car
open.

"Being a railroad detective could also be scary because he had to go
all kinds of places, sometimes alone."

"But I could arrest anybody in New Orleans and order them to make $10 more a month than a city
police man," Vairin said.

Vairin also remembers a woman railroad detective who was very strict and very professional.
